

INVASION OF ITALIAN MAINLAND LAUNCHED IN VAST STRENGTH; FORMIDABLE BASE FOR FUTURE OPERATIONS ESTABLISHED WITHIN FEW HOURS OF FIRST LANDINGS

Flying Fortresses of 12th U. S. Army Air Force Accompany Landings with Series of Pulverizing Blows—Range as Far North as Brenner Pass—34 Enemy Planes Destroyed as Against 15 Lost By the Allies

(By Pierre J. Huss, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 3—Allied invasion of the Italian mainland was launched in vast strength today and within a few hours of the first landings on the Calabrian shore a formidable base for future operations had been established.

The British Eighth Army under Gen. Sir Bernard Law Montgomery built up the first bridgehead, streaming across the Straits of Messina from Sicily in the wake of a terrific artillery bombardment.

Flying Fortresses of the Twelfth United States Army Air Force accompanied the landings with a series of pulverizing blows, ranging as far north as the Brenner Pass connecting German Austria with Italy. A vital bridge at Bolzano used day and night for transportation of Nazi troops into Italy was one of the targets destroyed by the raiders.

In terrific air battles that accompanied the Bolzano attack, 34 enemy planes were destroyed against 15 lost by the Allies.

Preceding and concurrent with the landings, powerful swarms of Allied bombers pounded the Reggio Calabria area, directly across the Straits from Messina.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's original 40-word communique announcing the invasion was supplemented by a naval announcement this afternoon which said:

"The British and Canadian troops that landed this morning on the coast of Calabria were moved to the assault in landing craft of the Royal Navy, escorted and supported by a force of cruisers, monitors, destroyers, gunboats and other small craft.

Chas. Lennig Co. Awarded The Army-Navy "E"

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3—The Army-Navy "E" was awarded yesterday to Charles Lennig and Company, one of the oldest chemical firms in the United States. Founded in 1819 by Nicholas Lennig, the firm began life as an importing company under the name of the Tacony Chemical Works.

Charles Lennig & Company continued operation through the 19th century with the Lennig family in control. However, when John B. Lennig realized that he would have no male relative to whom to leave the company, he willed that the patents and property of Charles Lennig should be sold and the proceeds turned over to the surviving female relatives. When the company was put on the market, Rohm & Haas realized its potentialities and assumed control in 1920.

The awarding of the Army-Navy "E" was for efficiency in meeting huge military demands for essential chemicals for explosives, a standard reference fuel, anti-fouling ship-bottom paints, submarine battery solutions, and photographic film.

ALERT AT ALL TIMES

(Note: Following is the third of a series of six articles by Leo V. Dolan, chief of the London bureau of INS, who recently returned to England after a vacation in the United States. AT SEA, Sept. 3 (Delayed)—(INS)—From out of the nowhere came today a slew of submarine talk that more than made up for the previous lack of it.

We are plowing steadily along, but we know now—Doc and Skipper and Alex and I—that this is no moonlight sail up the Hudson or a Great Lakes cruise.

This is War, with a capital "W," we are in it and we feel too small and expendable to capitalize ourselves. We are just four small-time Joe's whom Doenitz never heard of but whom he is going to do his damndest to get regardless.

It started at the breakfast table. We've been moving into colder climes for more than a few days and skipper and I came swaying into the mess this morning (not alcohol, the briny deep), for fish and eggs and bread made soggy by inability of the dough to rise because of the ocean's restless roll.

Brightly we all gave a big good-morning to the vice-commander, who promptly cast a bilious eye on our direction and began a reminiscence of his last voyage with the

YIELD OF POTATOES IN BUCKS IS LIGHT

Drought and the Corn Borer Do Damage To the Vines

SHOWERS SOME AID

The potato yield in Bucks County to date this season, states Bucks County farm agent, William F. Greenawalt, has been extremely poor, and the production of a good crop later in the season depends entirely upon weather conditions. Should there be a sufficient amount of rainfall, it is likely the later varieties of potatoes will produce well.

Mr. Greenawalt explained that there are two reasons for the poor yield. These are the drought and damage which was caused in potato vines by the European corn borer earlier in the season.

During a ten-day period of hot and dry weather earlier in the summer many of the potato vines wilted, and in spite of the fact that the farmers had spent much time in preparing the soil and planting the potatoes and that they had spent money for seed and fertilizer, they were compelled to plow under the vines and to use the soil for other purposes.

Recently farmers have been digging their early varieties, and in some places they found the yield so poor and the potatoes so small that they did not bother to harvest them, but plowed them down.

Should there be sufficient rainfall, said Mr. Greenawalt, a good crop may be expected. This is especially true where the farmers made frequent applications of spray materials. However, farmers who merely dusted or failed to spray, said Mr. Greenawalt, cannot

BRISTOL TOWNSHIP SCHOOLS WILL BE GREATLY CROWDED

No Relief in Sight; Terrace "Tax Money" Not Yet Received

BEAVER BLDG. READY

Elect Mrs. M. B. Seidel As Junior High School Teacher

The great impact of pupils into Bristol Township, and the subsequent need of additional school rooms, was discussed last evening by members of Bristol Township board of school directors, although no definite action could be taken to relieve the situation at this time, the directors decided.

Directors were caused some speculation as to why the more than $6,000 which it has been stated publicly was paid to the board in lieu of taxes on the Bristol Terrace project, has not been received. No money to cover the loss in taxes on this project has been paid to date, state the directors, although announcement of such payment was made through government agencies several weeks ago.

The Beaver street school building, which is to be used for students of grades one to six from Bristol Terrace, is now in readiness.

Seventy-six window lights were replaced in this building, that number having been broken by individuals bent on mischief. And since that number was replaced 10 more have been broken, it was reported to the board.

School sessions for Bristol Township will open on Tuesday, September 7th.

Harry Barth, president, occupied the chair last evening at the meeting in the junior high school building. There was but one absentee.

Mrs. Mary B. Seidel, of Newport Terrace, was elected to teach in the junior high school.

Christo Aphas, 40, Boston, was the truck driver, according to Dr. Clayton Moyer, Bucks county coroner. Aphas was held in $2,000 bail for an inquest. The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spanier, who operate a farm near the scene of the accident.

They are buying bonds as never before, many at sacrifice to themselves.

From overseas, Wayne Fry, a marine, and son of Councilman Roy F. Fry, sends word that his company had well over 90 per cent, and the entire base 95 per cent, in a recent navy war bond allotment campaign.

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Bombers Attack Northern France

London—American Flying Fortresses and Marauder bombers attacked northern France today, escorted by swarms of fighter planes.

An Italian Stefani news agency dispatch said that Paris had been attacked by Allied raiders and that many casualties and heavy damage had been caused. Stefani added that many high explosive and incendiary bombs had been dropped in the western quarters of the former French capital. The Nazi-controlled Paris radio also declared Paris was "heavily bombed."

Coastal observers speculated on the possibility that the gigantic air attacks might represent a "softening up" process preparatory to invasion of Europe from the north or west. Powerful formations continued to sweep across the channel throughout the afternoon.

The German radio said bombs were dropped in scattered areas of western Germany during the night by Allied "nuisance raiders" flying singly.

Application Denied

Harrisburg—The Public Utility Commission has denied the application of James H. Downing, of Green Lane, for approval of the right to transport coal from the Williamstown Colliery in Williamstown, Repplier Colliery in St. Clair and Beaver Meadow Colliery in Beaver Meadow to points in Montgomery, Bucks, Philadelphia and Delaware counties.

Firemen Save War Material From Flames

Firemen moved the war material from a loading platform to a spot beyond the reach of the flames which raged for three hours.

Wardens and Police May Escort Women

By Tony Zecca

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, Sept. 3—(INS)—Air Raid Wardens and Auxiliary Policemen today were given the green light by the State Defense Council to perform the "extra-curricular" duty of escorting women war workers home during the wee morning hours as protection against thugs and moshers.

Asserting that the work is "not a civilian defense activity," Col. Lynn G. Adams, chief of the State Council's Protective Services, said, however, that "it is a matter for their own decision; if the men belonging to the Citizens' Defense Corps want to assist local police, it is all right."

In Philadelphia, approximately 75,000 civilian defense workers are co-operating with the regular police force in apprehending culprits molesting women war workers. Patrolling the streets at night when factory shifts are changing, the volunteers work in pairs, armed with police riot sticks, the council said. They have the general powers granted to any citizen to make arrests for crimes committed within their view.

It was pointed out that such arrangements could be worked out in other large defense centers employing great numbers of workers.

The Air Raid Wardens are the largest branch of the Citizens' Defense Corps, totaling 213,000. Of these, 25,000 are women, the Defense Council said.

136 DONATE BLOOD; PLASMA UNIT VISITS

Those Unacceptable Are Disappointed; All Eager To Aid

NAMES ARE LISTED

A total of 136 additional individuals donated blood yesterday when the Red Cross Mobile Blood Plasma Unit was stationed at Harriman Hospital for the second consecutive day.

This number, in addition to the 159 donors of Wednesday, made a total of 295 who gave of their blood that others might live.

"The willingness on the part of so many who learned they could not give was a challenge to the Red Cross workers and other volunteers," commented one Red Cross representative today. "Several individuals, themselves underweight, wanted to do their 'bit,' and there were tears in the eyes of some when they were told they could not be accepted."

One man, knowing his heart was in a weakened condition, was among yesterday's volunteers, but he said he was willing to take the chance. On Wednesday a woman in her middle sixties showed keen disappointment when she learned she was overage for such a donation. Eager to do her part she wanted to give anyway. When the situation was explained to her she requested the privilege of watching

BENSALEM SCHOOLS TO BE CROWDED AT THE START OF TERM

Sessions Will Get Underway For Full Day On Wednesday

BUS SCHEDULE SAME

Announce Tentative Assignment of Teaching Faculty For District

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 3—Bensalem Township schools will open for a full day, at 8.50 a. m., on Wednesday, September 9th. The closing hour varies from 3.10 to 3.30 in different buildings, depending on the length of the noon period.

Beginners will be registered in their respective school buildings on the opening day. Children who are six or will be six years of age before February 1st, 1944, will be admitted. To register, these beginners will need their birth certificate and a certificate of successful vaccination.

Pupils who are transferring into the senior high school from other schools may register in the high school building from one to four p. m. on Tuesday, September 7th. This will expedite matters materially for the opening day. New pupils who fail to report Tuesday may have long delay on Wednesday while classes and study periods are being organized.

The bus schedule will be the same as it was at the close of last term. There is an indication that the Siles bus will be less crowded than it was last spring. If this is verified during the first few days of school, a stop at Hulmeville Road and Street Road may be resumed for beginners there, after the first week of school.

The term calendar follows: September 8th, opening day; November 8th, visiting day, no school; November 25th and 26th, Thanksgiving vacation; December 24th-31st, inclusive, Christmas vacation; March 23rd and 24th, Schoolmen's Week, no school; April 7th and 10th, Easter holidays; May 30th, Memorial Day, no school; June 6th, closing day.

The school buildings have been thoroughly cleaned and reconditioned and all floors waxed. Several scheduled renovations had to be postponed because materials or artisans were not available.

The service honor roll for graduates and former Bensalem high school students is about ready to be placed on the lawn of the high school site. The project was sponsored by the high school student council.

PETROLEUM CRISIS

It is of the greatest concern to the nation generally that the Petroleum Administrator has called for crude oil production "at or in excess of its maximum efficient capacity" in every state except Texas. And Texas production is not far from its efficient capacity.

Daily production quota has now been set at more than 4,000,000 barrels. It has been frequently stated that the nation's oil wells can not produce much more than 4,000,000 barrels daily without violating those conservation safeguards which have been set up to protect this vital resource.

The executive committee of the Independent Petroleum Association declares that gasoline rations have been reduced because there isn't enough petroleum for civilians and for war, that later there will not be enough for war unless production is increased, and that production cannot be increased because the price is too low. Many stripper wells have been closed down because operation was unprofitable. Low price of crude and lack of critical materials discourage exploration, which certainly could uncover new producing zones.

But the most alarming phase of the situation is that wells are to be operated above their efficient rating. Such reckless exploitation threatens to ruin millions upon millions of barrels of petroleum already developed and waiting to be pumped.

Why cannot the necessary orders be given to encourage new production? Are foreign sources of oil being drawn upon as much as possible or is America bearing virtually the whole burden? This nation has generations of dependence upon its petroleum resources ahead of it. No crisis can condone their wasteful use.

FREE AGRICULTURE

Repeated intimations in Washington that the Administration would be forced to liberate agriculture from the clutches of politicians and economists seem to have some foundation. Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, has stated that the 1944 food production program calls for the abandonment of rigid crop acreage allotments and a request to farmers to obtain the maximum production from available land, labor and machinery.

From the time during the Hoover administration that the trick economists prevailed upon the Federal Government to adjust the supply of farm products to the demand by artifice and guess, American agriculture has been on an insecure foundation. The manifest impossibility of correctly estimating demand and then adjusting production was well known. The elements of weather, insect pest and world market conditions can not be foretold, hence the whole process of forecasting is on a chance basis.

With votes at stake, and the stimulant of depression relief to work on, the New Dealers found a situation favorable to their passion for regimentation.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

With the war headlines getting us down daily, and tired war workers in urgent need of relaxation, it is pleasant to be able to recommend a film that offers temporary escape at least from all our problems. It is "Lady of Burlesque," due for its local premiere at the Grand Theatre, today, through United Artists release, and is as gay and tuneful and mirth-provoking as the doctor ordered.

The famous strip tease artist,

Gypsy Rose Lee, authored the story, "G-String Murders," from which this brittle, streamlined story running from the zaniest farce to tense, suspense-filled drama, was adapted.

BRISTOL THEATRE

The ravishing Inez Cooper, famed in Hollywood as "the girl who looks like Hedy Lamarr," makes her debut as a star on the screen of the Bristol Theatre today in the principal role of "Wings Over the Pacific," romantic drama of a South Sea island drawn into the maelstrom of war.

On the same bill program is the George Abbott musical comedy success, "Too Many Girls," starring Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, and a host of Broadway stars.

RITZ THEATRE

THE RESINOUS PRODUCTS & CHEMICAL COMPANY

1. TODAY the most coveted award ever given to civilians for production achievement, the Army-Navy "E", was given to the workers, men and women, of Charles Lennig & Company. This company long has been a leader in the production of old, standard chemicals. To meet today's war-time needs we have expanded and modernized to produce a complete line of modern chemicals. These are the products that won us the "E" pennant...the proof that we, too, are in the fight.

2. SEVERAL MONTHS AGO the Bristol workers of our associate, Rohm & Haas Company, were awarded their Army-Navy "E". One of the products they manufacture is PLEXIGLAS, the plastic that forms bomber noses, tail assemblies, cockpit canopies, gun turrets and many other vital parts aboard every type of Army and Navy airplane. The workers of Rohm & Haas recognized their award as an honor for past work done—and promised to meet its challenge to push production records still higher.

3. IN JULY the workers of our other associate, The Resinous Products & Chemical Company, were awarded their Army-Navy "E" in recognition of the help afforded the war effort by their many new and unusual accomplishments with synthetic resins. Their products include adhesives used to make plywood for airplanes, landing barges, PT boats; coatings resins for paints and finishes used on tanks, trucks, battleships; and other resins for use in the synthetic rubber and other vital war industries.

Bensalem Schools To Be Crowded At Start of Term

The tentative staff assignments for the coming term are as follows: Andalusia: Grades one and two, Miss Virginia Morris; grades two and three, Mrs. Ann Melick; grades four and five, Miss Meta Miller; grade six, Mrs. William Rever.

Cornwells Heights: Grade one, Miss Eleanor Brown; grade two, Miss Frances Benner; grade three, Miss Helen McCreary; grade four, Mrs. Melvin Mack; grade five, Miss Sara Myers; grade six, Mrs. Fred Juliff.

Eddington: Grades one, two and three, Miss Helen Williamson; grades four and five, Mr. Leroy Wiser.

Penn Valley: Grades one, two and three, Miss Eleanor Luff; grades four, five and six, Miss Jane Bechtel.

Trevose: Grades one and two, Mrs. Charles Dittmar; grades two and three, Miss Anna Johnson; grades four and five, Miss Helen Goe; grades five and six, Miss Virginia Neely.

Trevose Junior High School: English and Home Economics, Miss Alberta Howell; Science and Mathematics, the Rev. George Lurwick; Social Studies and Industrial Arts, Howard Hilgenhoff, building principal.

Bensalem Junior and Senior High School: Science, Misses Cecelia Snyder and Katherine Pentz; English, Miss Jane Kohler and Axel Kleinberg; History, Miss Emily Schroeder; Social Studies, Frank Hege; Geography, Miss Dorothy Green; Languages, Mrs. Theodore Edwards; Commercial Subjects, Miss Mabel Prantz and Claire Withers; Physical Education, Miss Marjorie Church and John Bixler; Music, Mrs. Roland Tebbis; Mathematics, Melvin Mack and Russell Strubel.

Art: Miss Marguerite Kroeckel. School Nurse: Miss Thelma Miller.

Schools Doctor: Dr. Charlotte Thellacker.

Office Secretary: Miss Loretta Stevenson.

"This new staff represents a 40 per cent turn-over from the one serving last June. Such represents a challenge to Bensalem Township. Most of the teachers who left the local system transferred for a higher salary or for smaller classes," said a spokesman.

"Bensalem needs to raise salaries beyond the present schedule and reduce class size by a building program to stem this tide. A reasonable move-up and turn-over is natural and wholesome, but when it happens on a large scale, the children in the school district suffer a handicap. In spite of talents and experience of staff replacements a new faculty becomes an effective, united staff after months or years of working together as a unit.

"The average number of pupils per teacher for best teaching is 25. When the number exceeds 30 the danger signal flashes. The Bensalem High School enrollment is eased somewhat by receiving Bristol Township tuition pupils in grades 11 and 12 only. Last term 10th grade was admitted also, and three years ago their ninth grade was included. Such relief is counteracted partly by heavier junior high school enrollment. For the coming term the local eighth grade will be divided into three sections instead of two. Even so the sections will contain about 36 pupils each."

Complete enrollment statistics will be published about the end of the first week of school.

Yield of Potatoes

In Bucks Is Light

expect a good yield, even though there may be a sufficient amount of moisture.

The tomato crop also has been reduced very extensively as a result of the lack of rain. The rain last week came too late to do much good to the earlier varieties of tomatoes, but the later varieties may produce well if there is sufficient moisture.

The tomato yield this year, said Mr. Greenawalt, in general will be not as good as last year, when the trucks were hampered by two weeks of rainy weather. The wet weather last year, added Mr. Greenawalt, did not cause near the amount of damage to the tomatoes as the dry weather did this year.

Many of the tomatoes, it was pointed out, were sun scalded as a result of the intense heat. The later varieties of tomatoes were benefitted by the rather light rainfall last week, and with a little more moisture, said Mr. Greenawalt, they may produce well.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

ridiculous in view of the fact that one of the consistent charges made by his opponents has been that Mr. Roosevelt stood by his friends so long and so strongly that costly mismanagement resulted; that he was very poorly advised and that the national interests suffered.

THAT CHARGE has been made frequently in connection with Madame Perkins, with Mr. Harry Hopkins, with Mr. Henry Morgenthau, with Mr. Paul McNutt with Mr. Aubrey Williams, with lame ducks such as ex-Senator Prentiss Brown and ex-Senator Clyde Herring, with many, many others—some of them good but many plainly middle-aged misfits, unqualified for the positions they had been given. A justified case has been made against Mr. Roosevelt for retaining in important posts third and fourth rate men long after their incapacity had been demonstrated, merely because they were his friends. But not before has the charge been made that he did not stand by his friends.

NOW THIS charge is made by his friends. In addition his friends—not his enemies, but his friends—assert that the reasons Mr. Roosevelt has not "stood by" Mr. Welles, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Perkins and Mr. Davis are political ones. One columnist, who can be classed as at least New Dealerist, wrote that both Mr. Henderson and Mr. Perkins had been "kicked out" as "sacrificial goats by the President, for whom they would have laid down their lives." The gentleman who wrote that is an able, high-minded and usually level-headed man. He must have been in a high state of excitement to make so exaggerated a statement. For one thing neither Mr. Henderson nor Mr. Perkins would "lay down their lives" for any man or anything. They just are not the type and there isn't much excuse for so picturing them.

THE LITERAL fact is that every worthwhile thing they ever had in the way of reputation and salary was given them by Mr. Roosevelt. And, if, after they had messed matters up pretty badly, Mr. Roosevelt reluctantly let them go, he was wholly within his rights. To accuse him of ingratitude is just too silly to discuss. He made these men; they did not make him. They would not have "laid down their lives" or anything else for him and he owed them not a thing. The only justified criticism of Mr. Roosevelt concerning Mr. Henderson and Mr. Perkins is, first, that he ever put them in such important jobs and gave them so much power; second, that he kept them so long. Concerning Mr. Welles and Mr. Davis, there just is no point trying to make them seem like "sacrificial goats" kicked out by a President for whom they would have "laid down their lives." That is nonsense.

TRUE, MR. WELLES is an able man, but the situation which had arisen between him and Mr. Hull made it impossible for both to continue longer in their positions. Forced to choose, Mr. Roosevelt could do nothing but what he did.

If the full story could be told, he would appear more than justified. Again the real criticism is that he delayed action so long. The strength of Mr. Hull is not, as suggested, with the Southern Democrats, but in the esteem in which he is held by the country as a whole—an esteem due to his high private character and fine public record. As for Mr. Davis, it is true Mr. Roosevelt humiliated him by leaving him out of the Quebec conference and by rebuking him for the character of certain OWI broadcasts. But, he deserved the rebuke and he certainly has botched his job.

BEFORE LONG Mr. Roosevelt can be counted upon to issue some sort of statement or write some sort of letter or take some sort of action calculated to show his "affectionate confidence" in both Mr. Welles and Mr. Davis. At least, that is the way he always has operated under such circumstances. Summing up, there is no basis for the charge that the President is not "standing by his friends." As to the charge that he is playing politics, that is true. No posted man will dispute that. But New Deal jobholders and writers who have basked in White House favor hardly seem the ones to become indignant about it.

Two sons, Frank and Allen Mack, who were named executors of the estate, will inherit the estate at her death. The testator died July 27th.

A gold watch and chain, diamond ring and one share of Lehigh County Agricultural Society stock was bequeathed to the executor who will share the remainder of the estate with Clayton L. Krum, a son, and the widow, Laura A. Krum. The will was executed May 27, 1940.

Letters of administration in the estate of John Koba, also known as John Kober, Morrisville, were granted to his mother, Mary Koba, Trenton, N. J. She shares the estate, $700 personal, with Michael Koba, father of the testator.

Servicemen Buying Bonds Regularly

"This is a wonderful showing, as a great many of the men had to reduce the allotments they were sending to their wives, mothers and children. I know that it was a sacrifice to many, but from the stories we hear, and mostly true, plenty of supplies have been lost in the North Atlantic," Fry writes his father.

The commandant had officially opened a campaign to enroll all officers and enlisted personnel in the navy and marine corps on duty at NOB Londonderry in the Navy War Bond Allotment Plan. Three days later 91 per cent of the entire base had signed applications, and a few days later returns from all camps and divisions reported 95 per cent of all hands "On board the bond wagon."

"It isn't easy to take money which can be used for so many pleasant things—on leave for example—and stick it into war bonds," it is stated in the Derry-Nob News. "That requires a considerable amount of self-denial because money isn't too plentiful in this world. It's easy to figure that this may be the last chance to 'howl' before getting back home—the last time to be abroad in a foreign land. The navy recognizes the obvious merits of the plan; it understands the reasons for the plan and it will cash in on the benefits of the plan. 'We're savvy and we're saving!'"

And from the U. S. Naval Air Station at Norman, Okla., comes word of a commendation for John Cocordas, son of Chris Cocordas, of Mill street. The commendation issued by the commanding officer to young Cocordas, reads thus: "It has come to my attention that you are cooperating with the navy war bond program by making regular allotments for the purchase of war savings bonds. You are commended for this patriotic act, and for your contribution to the nation's war effort at a time when your help is needed. A navy man who gives his services, his money, and his life, if necessary, is representative of the highest degree of unselfish patriotism."

was opened at 10:30 last night, Algiers time, when spearheads of the British Eighth Army swarmed ashore in southern Italy under a devastating aerial and artillery barrage.

Latest word from the new front is that the landing forces "have continued to advance" after crossing the two-mile-wide Messina Strait to establish the first Allied bridgehead on the continent.

Initial announcement of the invasion gave few details and did not mention specific landing places. What resistance was encountered by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British and Canadian veterans was not immediately disclosed. Although optimistic, authoritative quarters emphasized the certainty of strong opposition from German forces in Italy. Fierce and bloody fighting was expected as the Allied advance expands inland. One report reaching London said preliminary enemy opposition to the landing was restricted to desultory artillery fire.

The main landing followed a heavy concentration of Allied artillery fire and was carried out in the darkness under a powerful umbrella of Allied warplanes. A path for the invaders had been paved by a number of small preliminary reconnaissance landings and bombardment of coastal defenses yesterday by the British battleships Nelson and Rodney and other naval forces.
